Friends of the Cleveland Kennel

Shaking and meowing, the animal warden found a tiny kitten alone on a Cleveland street. Taking him to Cleveland Animal Care & Control, they saw that his leg injury was life-threatening and needed emergency care.

The scared and scrawny kitten was rushed to a clinic where they amputated its front leg, and gave him IV fluids and antibiotics for his high fever and infection.

After his leg healed, the newly chubby kitten was adopted and named Thomas by his new forever family.

Thomas is one of the 50 animal emergency cases helped by donors like you through the Friends of the Cleveland Kennel emergency medical fund.

Providence House

Tiffany came to us for help caring for her two young boys after escaping a domestic violence situation. She had lost her housing and her job while filing domestic violence charges. While she had a protection order for herself, she did not have it for her boys and was nervous about being found. With no space in the shelter system, Tiffany turned to us for support. The boys stayed in our emergency shelter, and she was able to find a new job and enroll her children in daycare. Tiffany was able to maintain her sons' services with Help Me Grow, participate in her own counseling services, and address her legal needs. After 60 days they moved to a family shelter while waiting for permanent housing. She is now in her own apartment with her children and active in our Aftercare program.
